Excerpt: . . . decide between acute and chronic disease. I have preserved the urinary sediment from three of these cases, and although the first case occurred nearly fifteen years ago, the tube-casts are as well seen as when the specimen was recent. You may see these specimens under the microscopes on the table, and having carefully inspected them, you may recognise their like when you meet with them in practice. One case was that of a solicitor aged 40, another a merchant aged 56, another a clergyman aged 45. The symptoms and the condition of the urine were alike in all. There was great prostration, vomiting, bleeding at the nose, and in one case from the gums, no dropsy, ultimately a typhoid condition, and unconsciousness shortly before death. The urine was blood-tinged, the specific gravity from 1009 to 1017, moderately albuminous. A rather copious sediment was composed of dark granular and large hyaline casts, with scattered blood discs. Some of the granular casts had a blood tinge, and it is probable that they were in part composed of disintegrated blood. After death, in the only case examined, the kidneys were found somewhat enlarged, soft, and congested. Some Prognosis. --On the subject of prognosis I have but little to add to what I have already said. Chronic desquamative disease, as a rule, tends gradually to a fatal termination. The rate of progress varies much in different cases and at different periods of the same case. You will remember what I said as to the...
