Excerpt: . whole mouthful of green measuring-worms. The next time he had visited a garden down the hillside, for he brought one raspberry in his bill and coughed up three more. The three young Grosbeaks left the nest the morning of July 6. They were not able to fly more than a few feet, but they knew how to perch and call for food. I never heard a more enticing dinner song. The minute a youngster s appetite was satisfied, he always took a nap. There was no worry on his mind as to where the next bite was coming from. He just contracted into a fluffy ball, and he didn t pause a second on the borderland. It was so simple. His lids closed, and it was done. He slept soundly, too, for when I stroked the feathers of one, he didn t wake, but, at the sound of the parents wings, he awoke as suddenly as he dropped asleep. I have watched a good many bird families, but I never saw Home-Life the work divided as it seemed to be in the Grosbeak household. The first day I stayed about the nest, I noticed that the father was feeding the children almost entirely, and whenever he brought a mouthful, he hardly knew which one to feed first. The mother fed about once an hour, while he fed every ten or fifteen minutes. This seemed rather contrary to my understanding of bird ways. Generally...
